UNIVERSITY OF WALES LAMPETER

Founded as St David's College by Bishop Thomas Burgess in 1822, the University of Wales Lampeter (UWL) admitted its first students on St David's Day in 1827. After the ancient universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Scotland it is the oldest university institution in Britain, receiving its first charter in 1828. For more than a century it was an independent degree awarding college.

Lampeter enjoys the status of being the smallest university in Europe and as part of the federal University of Wales, a member of one of the largest. Originally students studied mainly theology and the arts; today the selection is wide including business management, information technology and social sciences.

In terms of UK quality rankings, the University of Wales Lampeter ranks higher than almost all international competitive institutions on all levels and similarly for Business Studies at Bachelors and Masters levels. The Chancellor of the University of Wales is HRH The Prince of Wales. Professor Antony Chapman is the Senior Vice-Chancellor of the federal University and Professor Robert Pearce is the Vice-Chancellor of the University of Wales, Lampeter.

The College of Technology London has partnered with the University of Wales Lampeter to deliver the BA (Hons) in Business Management. Students complete the programme at the CTL campus and graduate in the original St. David's Building at Lampeter.

Studying at CTL: What it means to current students...

CTL was the obvious choice for me, because after one year spent in London, it was 'the' College where tuition fee did not compromise the standard nor level of the course. Affiliation to University of Wales Lampeter has only put the icing on the cake.

Being an international student, I can say that CTL has given me the force and drive to go even further in my studies. Lecturers and administration are open and friendly and are ever willing to help. CTL has helped me improve both intellectually and socially.

Manjula SEERKISSOON, Mauritius

CTL is one of the best colleges in the UK that fulfils students' needs and requirements for studies at reasonable tuition fees. Further more CTL is in partnership with an outstanding University, the University of Wales Lampeter which awards the degree.

The course BA (Hons) in Business Management is very important to me, as it makes me aware of the current issues in business worldwide. This course and the college in general have helped me to:

- Learn how to study effectively
- Be IT competent
- Enhance creativity
- Improve communication skills, and
- Broaden my perception.
